

ARTICLES CITED BY COURTS AND TREATISES

Tax Consequences of Equitable Distribution cited by the Appellate Division in Orgler v. Orgler, 237 N.J. Super. 342 (App. Div. 1989).

Limited Duration Alimony cited by several Appellate and Trial Courts, most notably, Cox v. Cox, 335 N.J. Super. 465 (App. Div. 2001); Carter v. Carter, 318 N.J. Super. 34 (App. Div. 1999); Gordon v. Rozenwald, 380 N.J. Super. 55 (App. Div. 2005); Sweetwood v. Rosen, Docket No. A-315702T3 (unpublished) and Valente v. Valente, Docket No. A-1593-06T1 (unpublished). This article has formed the basis for the amendment to the N.J.S.A. 2A:34-23 creating Limited Duration Alimony.

Spousal Fiduciary Responsibilities cited in Steiner v. Fink (Docket No. FM-20-0432-10B) May 5, 2011 Letter Opinion issued by Judge Isserman, J.S.C. (Unreported) and in Schaub v. Schaub (Docket No. FM-15-129908S) dated April 8, 2009, authored by Judge David Millard.

Economic Realism has been cited in the book by Jay E. Fishman, Shannon Pratt & William J. Morrison, Standard of Value Theory and Applications.

Pre-Marital Assets: Proving and Defending Against Claims of Distributability cited in the article "Using the Real Estate Expert and Your Client's Testimony To Dispute Passive Increases" by Jeralyn L. Lawrence and Robin C. Bogan.

Recent Alimony Developments has been cited by the Appellate Division in Emolo (n/k/a Degroot v. Emolo), Docket Nos. A-2746-08T3 and A-3836-08T3 consolidated (unpublished).

The Linkage of Policy and the Valuation Standard: What Brown Really Means is contained in the Appendix of Skoloff and Cutler, New Jersey Family Law (ICLE).